The "Molloway Volunteer Brigade" formed in three sections of ten students determined to get money, and but of different floors. They were drawn up in line at "right turn! quick march! position!" Then each section went through two full drills.

A fire in sitting room No. 10 was sunposed. At command, "Get to work!" the engine was run down to the door- been out from Maryland about a way, a "chain" of recruits was formed to the nearest source of water supply, and the buckets were handed in line that the engine might be kept in full play. The pump was vigorously applied by two girls, while another worked the small hand hose quickly and ingeniously, so that the engine was | t d, men ducked under seats and at full speed in less than a minute. When the drill was concluded with the orders "Knock off!" and "Make up!" everything had been put in its own

Then came the "hydrant drill," which was conducted at the hydrant nearest the point of a supposed outbreak of fire. In this six students from each section took part. Directly the alarm was given one hundred feet of canvas hose was run out and an additional length (regulated, of course, by the distance) was joined to it.

At the words "Turn on" by the officer Peter Turney, whom the Tennessee known as "branch hoseman," the hose was directed so that, had there been water in it, it must have streamed on to the supposed fire. This drill was also accomplished in only a minute, and been arrested and are in juliat Gree at the commands "Knock off!" and "Make up!" the hose pipes were promptly disconnected, the pipe that is always ion as to whether the attack was kept attached to the hydrant was 'slacked down" and an extra hundred feet "coiled up" on the bight with astonishing rapidity. - Philadelphia Press.
